SUPT. HAYNES SENDS MAY-OR HIS RESIGNATION

Greatest Head of Schools High Point Ever Had Goes to Larger and Better Fields, Free From Petty Personalities and Politics--This City the Poorer by His Leaving.

Mayor W. P. Pickett, last week received the resignation of Mr. Thornwell Haynes to take effect June 24th, so Mr. Haynes could assume his duties as president of Birmingham College, July 1. In a personal letter to a friend Mr. Haynes, among other things, says: "My supreme regret in leaving High Point is that I leave as fine a crowd of true blooded friends as a man ever had" and that he will be in High Point soon to "tell all my old friends good bye and farewell."

The resignation as received by Mayor Pickett reads:

"I am herewith tendering to you and through you to the city council my resignation as superintendent of the High Point city school to take effect June 24, in order to assume the presidency of Birmingham College on July 1.

"While I have always been elected yearly from July 24 to July 24, I trust as vacation time is on you can allow my resignation to take effect one month before the year for which I was elected is finished.

"Thanking you and the city council for all your kindness, I remain, Very truly yours, Thornwell Haynes."

The Age-Herald of Birmingham of June 6 devotes two columns to Mr. Haynes' election and runs his "cut." The story says that Mr. Haynes was elected over a large number of applicants from almost every state. The paper publishes a sketch of Mr. Haynes' life and copies of the 1916 Atlanta's tribute to the superintendent. One paragraph concerning Mr. Haynes is:

"The president elect of Birmingham was congratulating himself over the selection of the board when seen last night. He said he appreciated the honor, and would take hold of the work at Birmingham college with determination and enthusiasm.

The millionaire chairman of the board of trustees, R. S. Munger, of Birmingham, gives the following statement to the Age-Herald: "We are proud to announce the election of Mr. Haynes as president of Birmingham college. We believe in selecting him we have the proper man to place at the head of Birmingham college. He is a layman of the Methodist church, a Christian gentleman and a very active church and Sunday School worker. He stands for the higher things in Christian life and education, and comes to us with more than 40 testimonials from ministers, educators, lawyers, doctors, business men and statesmen. His recommendations are from the best people of the south, and we consider ourselves lucky to be able to secure the services of such a man."

Judge Brandon of Tuscaloosa, Ala., prominently connected with Alabama Methodism, gave the Age-Herald the following concerning the college's new president.

"The election of Thornwell Haynes as president of Birmingham college, meets with the unanimous approval of the friends of that institution. Mr. Haynes is one of the able educators of the south and his experience and reputation as a diplomat will be of vast aid to the work he will do for Birmingham college. The trustees are to be congratulated upon securing the services of such a broad and able man to head the institution."

"Birmingham welcomes Thornwell Haynes, of High Point, N. C., as the new president of Birmingham college. Birmingham will extend him all encouragement and support and wish for him the greatest success in managing the affairs of one of Alabama's most useful institutions of learning."

As the successor of Dr. John D. Simpson, Mr. Haynes faces the task and responsibility of continuing a good work that the former began and maintained on a high plane. However, a study of Mr. Haynes' career will impress one with confidence in his equipment and capacity for the work before him.

"Mr. Haynes has been superintendent of schools at High Point, N. C., since 1911. He is a South Carolinian, was educated at Wofford college, where he received his A. B. degree. Later he attended Vanderbilt university and received his master's degree. He has served the United States government in the diplomatic service at Rouen, France, Vladivostok, Russia and Nanking, China. He is widely experienced, of broad and sympathetic viewpoint, and his addition to the list of Birmingham educators will be a material gain. However, because of Dr. Simpson's great work at Birmingham college, Birmingham will naturally expect much of the college's new president.

Birmingham college, under the leadership of its new head is expected to become even more useful in educational work, more influential in training and developing the young men of Alabama."

On last Tuesday evening the Alumni association held its meeting and the following excerpt from a newspaper report is reproduced:

"To me, the greatest thing in the world is growth," said Mr. Haynes. "The whole universe was built upon that plan. We should remember that evolution is a process and not a product, and that God has made it an unchangeable law that man grows by making."

In closing his speech Mr. Haynes said that he had expressed his opinion of Birmingham's needs as being in three P's--publicity, personal touch and prayer.

The alumni rejoiced that the head of the institution is an athletic man. It was found that Mr. Haynes had made his letters in football and baseball at Vanderbilt.

With the City Council

The city has in hand a proposition to trade the Wheeler Park property for the Wheeler lot next to the First Baptist church as a site for a public library building.

H. W. McCain was re-elected city physician at a salary of $20. per month.

Bascom Hoskins and S. C. Clark wanted the city to now take over the sewer system in Parkway. There was much discussion and a strong hint that the matter of taking over sewer lines from developing companies be done away with and this has been the consensus of opinion here for sometime.

Councilman Davis reported adversely as to opening up Dewey street upon the request of H. A. Moffitt.

The license of soft drink stands was raised from $5 to $10.

As the school fund had a surplus of $5,400 the city borrowed $4,000 therefrom at 5 per cent to help defray expenses of general fund during the summer months.

PUSH CARTS MUST GO

City Council Puts Ban on the Unsightly Wagons and Temporary Stands, also Looks into the Inspection of Milk. Both of which The Review Had Made a Fight For Exit push cart vendors, enter a greater safeguard to health.

At the meeting of the city council Friday night by a 3 to 2 vote the unsightly and unsanitary push carts with its ice cream cones, peanuts, pop corn, etc., laden with the dust of the city, were consigned to the scrap pile, so to speak, because they will not hereafter be permitted.

The Review two weeks ago pointed out the danger to the public's health of these vendors. Other towns have taken this advanced step and High Point did well to fall in line. The matter of having our milk and meat supply inspected received attention and doubtless will result in some thing definite. These measures the editor has been fighting for as well as sanitary groceries and we are glad to see that our officials are awakening to their importance such matters deserve. Let's keep the fight up, it will pay handsomely in dollars and cents to us in lives saved, in sickness and disease.

W. M. Marr New Superintendent

At the meeting of the City Council Friday night Prof. W. M. Marr, principal of South Main Street school was elected superintendent of the schools of High Point to succeed Thornwell Haynes, who goes to the presidency of Birmingham college.

When the time came to take up the election of the superintendent and teachers for the next term the council went into "executive session and dismissed the audience so as to do their work in "secret," some 15 applicants wanted to be at the head of our schools but only one name was considered, that of Prof. Marr.

The principal of South Main Street school to succeed Mr. Marr was left open. Prof. C. A. Smith was re-elected to the principalship of Elm Street school, Miss Emma Blair, Park street, Miss Ada Blair Grimes street. The salaries are as follows: Superintendent $1700 year; principal of Elm Street school, $900. per year; Park Street school, $900. year; principal Grimes Street school $840. year. Ossie Davis, colored, principal of Fairview school (negro), the city to pay $15. a month and American Society of Friends the balance.

Councilmen Terry and Smith did not vote for Mr. Marr, the former wanting more time to look over the eligibles and the latter against Marr. The new superintendent is a native of Bryson City, graduate of Trinity College with A. B. degree. 1910-1912 he was principal of Waynesville high school, 1912-1914 teacher of science in the Elizabeth City school and in 1914 came here to take the principalship of Main St. school.

Mr. Marr is only 28 years of age and his advanced perhaps as well in his studies at this age as the average school teacher and it is believed and hoped he has the traits for a leader of thought and action as superintendent of one of the best schools in the state.
